ADVICE TO THE PRESIDENT.

A North Carolina Republican Advised a Special Message to Congress Asking a Word Fitly spoken in Favor of the Alliance.

(Special to New York World.) WASHINGTON, Nov. 19. - Speculation and inquiry about the contents of the forthcoming Presidential message reveal the fact to-day that some of the Southern Republicans are urging the President to touch lighly on the Force bill, but to come out strong in an expression of tangible sympathy with the agricultural interests. These men do not go to the extent of advising an indorsement of the Sub-Treasury bill of the Farmers' Ailiance, but they insist that a word at this time from the President, carefully chosen and sincerely spoken, expressive of interest in the farmers and the battle they are fighting, would be of great value to the party in the agricultural States.

This is not the first time that this ad vice has been given him. More than a year ago a prominent Republican of North Carolina wrote to the President, inclosing some Farmers' Alliance literature, and urging him to give heed to the growing discontent among the farmers. He was told then that unless something was done in the way of checking the discontent, and counteracting the impression that the Republican leaders this point and Bristol, Tennessee, then were without sympathy with the men | the line coming from Danville via the who till the soil, the next election would prove disastrous to the party. The man who wrote to the President in this vein was C. M. Bernard, of the Eirst North Carolina District. He ad- the line via Bristol and the E. T. Private Secretary Halford acknowledged the receipt of this letter and stated that the President would give the matter earnest

Subsequently Mr. Bernard was nominated in this district as the Republican candidate for Congress, and upon taking the stump and finding the farmers almost solidly arrayed against him he sought to mollify them by relating the effort to secure Executive action in their favor and by reading to them Mr. Halford's assurance that the matter would receive the President's attention. The fact, however, that the matter had not provoked the President to any action in their interests made the farmers deaf to Mr. Bernard's appeal, and he was defeated by an Alliance man by an overwhelming majority.

Kansas Alliance Men Resolve.

TOPEKA, Kan, Nov. 20.—The Shawnee County Farmers' Alliance, one of the largest in the State, has decided to hold an open meeting December 13, to which all sub-alliances are invited, to listen to an address by Prof. James H. Prof. Canfield is a pronounced free trader, and is being urged as a candidate for Ingalls' seat in the Senate The Shawnee Alliance also adopted a resolution that delegates to the National Alliance be instructed to urge the establishment of a bureau of information, from which, each year, shall emanate fifty-two sets of Alliance lessons, to be published in slip form, each set equal in number to the whole number of membership in the United States, and that each set of lesof the higher grades yet filled by sons shall take up in questions and anhera's, and also several postmasters | swers some subject of vital importance gettles, particularly in the South. to the farmers and industrial classes of are all marked, and however the nation, and to be forwarded through Mr. Harrison would like to keep | the State and County Alliances to all men in places he will not be subordinate Alliances, to be distributed close his ears to the shrieks of among their membership at each meet-

WINSTON, N. C., Nov. 20.-Quite a sensation was caused here yesterday when it was found that two young la dies of Salem, whose character is unquestioned, took $200 of their father's money and boarded the train for the North. Various theories as to the reason of their action have been heard, but the prevailing impression is that they eloped for the purpose of marrying some where in the North, while a great many think they had a travelling mania. The relatives of the young ladies are sorely distressed and have telegraphed all the authorities along the different lines to arrest them.

When the Daily published yesterday afternoom the telegram also published in the CHRONICLE of to-day, concerning the new line from Danville to Winston, via the Midland survey, it excited much discussion. The exact line Mr. Gould would want for the Eastern connection of his Missouri Pacific is under discussion. When the road is completed from this city to Charlotte or Gastonia via Mocksville and Mooresville and the line is also completed between Midland survey will strike two good lines of the Richmond & Danville, and which one will be the main line it is hard to learn. VANCE'S re-election. Those who allow themselves to apprehend danger must assume that the representatives of the people of North Carolina are no better than blacklegs or

We do not believe that any man in the next Legislature, whether he be Allianceman or not, will go back on the pledges he made to his constituents or fail to vote as he was instructed.

Such dishonorable and treasonable conduct is not characteristic of North Carolinians, especially of the men whom the people elect to make their laws.

[By United Press.]

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 20. - Moses S. Marks, a young man who was employed in the Flour City Bank until 15 months ago when he was discharged, went to the Western Union telegraph office yesterday and sent a message to the National Bank of Commerce, of New York city, the correspondent of the Flour City Bank, asking it to send by express to the Flour City Bank $25,000 in currency, $10 and $20 bills. Marks signed to the dispatch the name of Wm. Augustus Waters, Cashier of the Flour City Bank. This morning Marks went to the American Express office, and upon the arrival of the package of money from New York signed for it, took the money and disappeared. The robbery and forgery was discovered when Cashier Waters received this morning's mail to day and found in it a letter from the National Bank of Commerce advising him of the money sent. Mr. Walters was taken completely aback, as he had not ordered the money. He sent at once to the express office to learn whether the money was there. The express company said the money had been given to Markas it was supposed he was still connected with the bank. It was then that forgery and robbery were discovered. In a short time the entire detective force was looking for Marks.

Mr. Morosini said to a New York Sun reporter the other day: "More has been written about Jay Gould, individaally, than about any other living Amerihaving splendid bath rooms. - Lenoir can. With all that has been written, comparatively little is known of him. Most of the stories, printed or otherwise, about him have been imaginative, or so distorted as to lose resemblance to the facts. The lack of knowledge is due to Mr. Gould's ways. There never was a man with less obtrusiveness in his personal character. He prefers to keep out of sight. Like Napoleon, he is a man of silence and thought. He would be out of his element in a crowd. Mr. Gould's external appearance affords a fair notion of his mental makeup. His face always wears a contemplative expression. It is a fact that he are so vast and his schemes so complimade a desperate leaf, and landed with cated that his mind must be bent upon his feet in the air. Severe cuts on the them all the time. Mr. Gould's eyes are seldom turved up to the face of a person with whom he is talking He will now and then cast a glance at his questioner, but generally he is looking in some other direction. This peculiarity of Mr. Gould's is not because he is unable to look anybody in the face, but because he is meditating while he is conversing.
